Known as White Hawk Estate, this remarkable Italianate residence at 300 High Street represents a rare convergence of architecture, history, craftsmanship, and setting. Commissioned by Kenneth Byrd White and Margaret Elizabeth Hawk, whose surnames inspired the estate's name, the property was designed by the noted Boston architectural firm Bigelow and Wadsworth, with a landscape plan attributed to renowned landscape architect Arthur A. Shurcliff.

Set on more than 7.5 acres near Winchendon's historic Old Center, the estate unfolds with a sense of permanence and proportion that is increasingly difficult to find. Mature grounds frame an architecturally distinguished home created for gracious everyday living as well as memorable gatherings.
